Question 2

Read the following text. Then, answer questions (a) – (j).

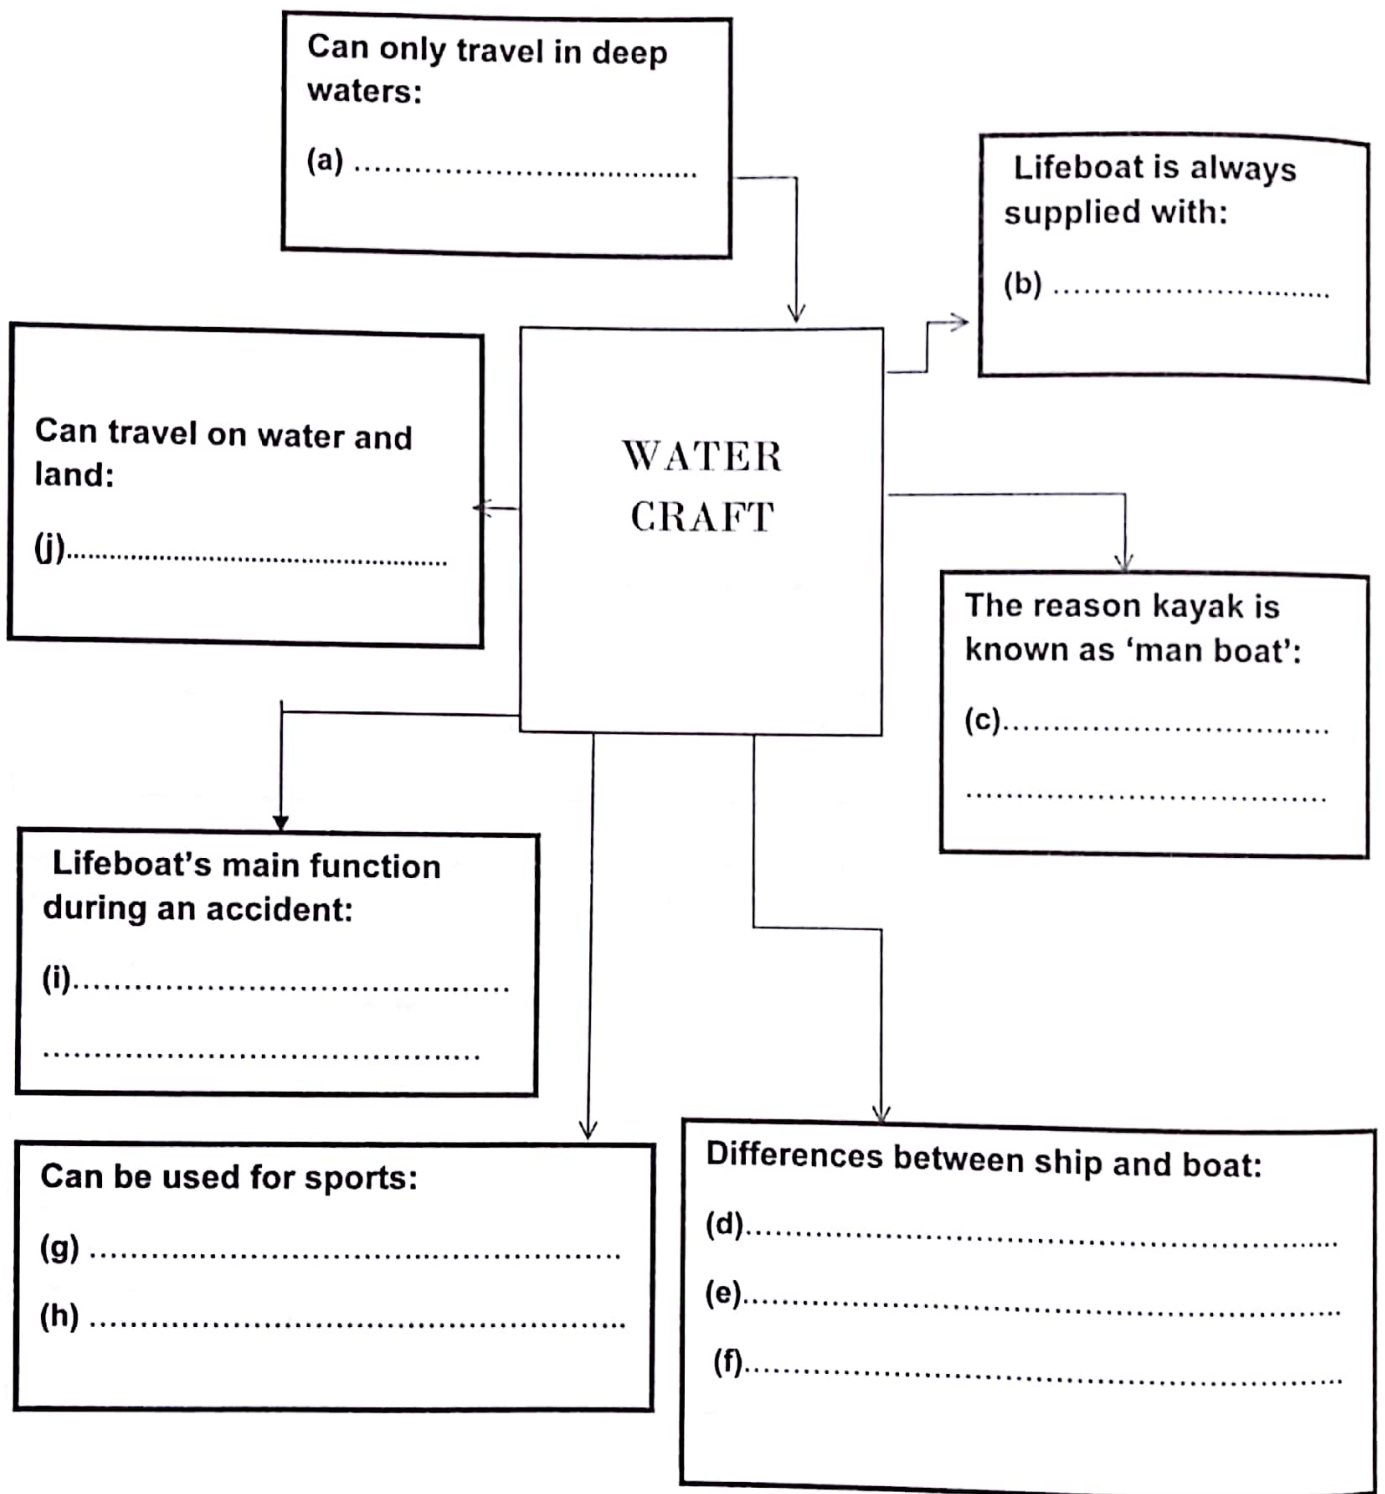

Read this extract about various types of water craft.

	A ship is a large watercraft that travels the world's oceans and other sufficiently deep waterways, carrying passengers or goods, or in support of specialized missions, such as defense, research and fishing. Ships are generally distinguished from boats, based on size, shape and load capacity.
	In emergency situations, lifeboats come to the rescue! These are mainly attached to bigger vessels like cruises and their main function is to carry passengers to a secure area if the concerned vessel is met with an accident. The lifeboats are well-equipped with immediate food and water supplies.
	A kayak is a small boat propelled by people using a double-ended paddle. The word 'kayak' meant 'man boat'. It was built by the Eskimo in the Arctic region. The original kayaks had a wooden frame covered by animal skins and were used to hunt on the open waters of the Arctic Ocean. Today, however, kayaking is a popular water sports.
	A hovercraft is supported on a cushion of air. Aside from travelling on water, it can also travel on different types of terrain such as soft mud, marshes, swamps as well as on firm ground. There is an increasing number of small hovercrafts used for fun and racing purposes, mainly on lakes, marshy areas and some estuaries.

Question 4

Read the article below and answer the following questions.

Toothbrush Showdown

What gives your teeth the best clean – manual or electric?

It depends on how conscientious you are, says dentist Dr Rod Marshall of Australia's University of Queensland. A manual toothbrush is fine if you are skilled in the art of brushing. Sadly, "probably only ten per cent of people know how to brush their teeth properly," says Marshall.

There are so many choices of toothbrushes in the market. You can select a conventional head that is shaped roughly like a rectangle with rounded corners or you can choose a diamond head which is narrower at the top and can help reach into tight spaces around the back teeth.

If you brush under duress, or do not have a lot of time, an electric toothbrush may be the better choice – it can deliver a polished smile in two minutes, half the time of a manual toothbrush. Electric toothbrush can also motivate children to brush regularly.

Where the small-headed electric toothbrush really excel is in hard-to-reach places. They also stop you from brushing too hard – the motor cuts out.

What is the right way to clean? Brush in small circles with the bristles angled towards the gum at 45 degrees. For tricky areas, keep the same angle, but do a mini scrub back and forth. Manual or electric toothbrush, you will still need to floss.

Most dentists recommend using a soft-bristled toothbrush for sensitive teeth and gum. If you have trouble with plaque building up, you should use a medium-bristled toothbrush for a more effective cleaning. Most importantly, you need to brush your teeth at least once in the morning and once at night before you go to bed.
